THE BERGEN REGION

The Bergen region has a lot to offer a visiting cruise tourist arriving at the Port of Bergen, when the ice retreated some 12,000 years ago, it left behind thousands of islands like pearls on a string. From Marstein lighthouse south of Bergen to Hellesylt lighthouse in the north, you have a panoramic view of the ocean. The region is well known for fresh seafood and the wild lamb, “Strilalam”, which graze on the many islands along the ocean edge.

GULATINGET - Viking harbour and court of law, 900-1200

The Vikings had a regional parliament called “The Ridding”, which also served as a court of law. The last court of Norway was governed by “The Gula Ting”, one of the oldest and largest regional parliaments in the Nordic countries. It is thought to have been established by King Harald Fairhair (872-932). All free men had the right to assemble at the Thing. They discussed political matters, formulated laws and passed judgement in cases. “The Coding Law of Law” from 900 AD is the oldest known and preserved code of law in the Nordic Countries. It is currently preserved in the Royal Library of Copenhagen, after Norway’s union with Denmark. Today we find Viking things sites all around the North Sea where the Vikings settled. “The Althing” in Iceland is modelled after “The Gulathing”, gulat ringet.no
